How to Express Your Opinion

People are entitled to their own opinions, and we will often encounter people that have very different opinions to us. This doesn't mean that either person is wrong for having this opinion.

Some ways that we can express our opinions include:

In my opinion,

From my point of view,

If you ask me...

After giving this some thought...

In my experience...

Justification

Justification means giving reasons to explain why something is right. It's like showing your work to prove why you did what you did or why you believe what you believe. It's about providing evidence or explanations to support your decisions, actions, or opinions.

Inference

Inference is like making smart guesses based on what you already know and what you see or hear. It's figuring things out by putting clues together. It's about using clues to make conclusions.

Inference Questions

The family is camping.

Where could they be?
Where will they sleep?
How might they cook their food?
What will they do while they're camping?

Justification Question

The sun hung low in the sky, casting long shadows across the deserted street. The air was filled with the distant sound of chirping birds and the occasional rustle of leaves. Sarah walked briskly, her footsteps echoing against the quiet buildings. She clutched her backpack tightly, the weight of her textbooks pressing against her shoulders. As she turned the corner, she caught sight of her destination: the local library, its doors beckoning her with the promise of knowledge and adventure.

Why does the passage mention that the street is deserted?

Answer:

The passage mentions that the street is deserted to set the scene and create a sense of quietness and loneliness, it focuses on Sarah's surroundings as she walks to the library.

Overcoming Fear

Rashed, a grade 11 student with a good physique, found himself in the crowded gymnasium, surrounded by many competitors and enthusiastic spectators. As he prepared for his first Jujitsu competition in the city of Al Ain, he felt a mixture of excitement, however, he feared the unknown. He had trained for months.

As Rashed stepped onto the mat, his body reacted in ways he had never experienced before. His heart pounded against his chest like a drum, and his palms became clammy with sweat. Each breath felt slow, and adrenaline pushed through his veins. Although he remained steadfast on his goal – victory.

Soon Rashed was surrounded by his coaches and teammates, they offered him words of encouragement and support to overcome his fears. “Rashed! Rashed! Rashed!” they cheered from the sidelines. With each match, he gained confidence and eventually emerged victorious, proving to himself that courage triumphs over fear.

In the end, Rashed proved to himself that bravery is stronger than fear. By pushing through the moments of doubt, he discovered courage within himself that he hadn't realized existed. The competition taught him valuable lessons about facing challenges with courage and conquering

LearnEase

Ali, a bright Grade 11 student with an interest in business, had a big dream: to launch his very own startup. His idea was simple yet innovative—a digital platform named "LearnEase" to provide online tutoring services.

With LearnEase, students could receive tutoring sessions in subjects like math, science, and English, all from the comfort of their own homes. Unlike traditional tutoring centers with fixed schedules, LearnEase would offer flexible timing to accommodate students' busy lives to match their unique learning styles.

Ali envisioned his target customers as students struggling with challenging subjects and parents seeking affordable and convenient academic support for their children. LearnEase would be accessible to families from all backgrounds, offering quality education at an affordable price.

To promote LearnEase, Ali devised a comprehensive marketing strategy. He planned to use social media platforms such as Instagram and TikTok to engage with students and parents.

Furthermore, Ali intended to collaborate with schools and educational influencers to expand LearnEase's reach in the community.

Ali's passion for education and his commitment to making a difference in students' lives allowed him to create this his entrepreneurial journey. He believed that LearnEase had the potential to
