Travel and vacations

What is travel? Travel means going from the place where you live to another place, especially a place that's far away. Have you ever been on vacation with your family? Maybe you went to another city in your country, or maybe you went to a city in another country. Maybe you visited relatives or friends. Every year, people all over the world travel away from home. Why do people travel for their vacations? Mostly because it is fun, and it's interesting to see new and different places.

Vacations are very popular, but they're big business, too. Hotels, stores, and restaurants can make a lot of money from tourists. That's good because it gives people jobs to do. People work as waiters, cooks, cleaners, security staff, cab drivers, sports instructors, tour guides, and many other things. Take a look at some of these awesome places tourists can visit. For example, at an hotel in Bora Bora, France, you can look out of your door at the fish in the water. Also if you stay in an hotel in the Liwa Desert, you can go for a desert walks, go quad biking, and go camel riding.

One of the earliest and most famous trade routes that crossed Europe, the Middle East, and Asia is called the Silk Road. The Silk Road got its name because one of the main goods that people wanted to trade was beautiful Chinese silks. People in Europe and in Arabia thought these silks were very precious.

The Silk Road was more than 5500 kilometers long. The Silk Road crossed many countries, so people traded many different objects along it: for example, spices and gold, as well as silks. However, not everything that passed along the route was good. New diseases spread from one country to another.

Over two thousand years ago, the Arabians also established famous trading sea routes. People traded spices and silks between India, Africa, and the Mediterranean. There were other sea routes between China and India and China and Japan. But not all the big trading routes were between the eastern and western parts of the world. Another popular route was called the Amber Route. It was named after the orange fossil, amber, that was traded along it. Amber was also called the “gold of the north”. It went south from the Baltic through northern Europe to the Alps.
