Khalid's Big Day

Although my alarm clock was ringing loudly, I was reluctant to drag myself from bed because it was ceremony day, and I was due to receive my diploma. Filled with enthusiasm, Mum banged repeatedly at my door, eager for me to wake up and get ready for the event which I had been fearing for days. Although I blocked my ears, I could still hear a familiar singing voice filling up the house like a cloud of thick smoke. I was quite certain it must be Aunt Maryam.

It was obvious by their behavior that they were more concerned about today's ceremony than I was.

"Leave me alone, please," I begged.

They deliberately ignored my request, and both continued banging aggressively at my door. Filled with a huge wave of frustration, I pulled open the door, shouting, "Mum, stop! You are being rude."

"You don't want to go do you? Khalid, this degree you completed is reported to be one of the most complex courses in the country and above all, your test scores, which you won a variety of trophies for, are among the best in the region. Your determination has resulted in you becoming a fully qualified medical professional. This certificate is the reward you so very much deserve," she responded, in a startlingly direct manner.

I was certain, if the universities had sent the invitations earlier, giving us more notice, my father would have been able to book a flight in time and that's what was causing me the most disappointment. My father is certainly more interested in my educational studies than any of his current work projects in Europe and would love to be here. I was heartbroken, but I wanted to please my mother, so I attended the ceremony anyway.

"Khalid Al Ali!"

I nervously approached the stage, guided by the bright lights, I felt a firm pat on my right shoulder.

It must be Ahmed from biology. He is one of the most annoying boys in school and often hits people in class, I thought.

"Congratulations, my son."

It couldn't be. Could it? I thought.

"You made it!" My eyes lit up with delight. There he stood, the man who'd looked after me my whole life, teary eyed but bursting with pride.

Alternative Energy Now!

Alternative Energy Now! is being released to encourage global leaders to do more to tackle complex factors, such as overpopulation of urban developments, which are resulting in rising temperatures. The documentary looks at the alternative energy sources that are being employed by nations in order to battle the climate crisis and focuses mainly on the countries which are more interested in making real change than others. One of the most concerning aspects of the documentary is that a report stated some of those in global positions speak positively for change and share their innovative ideas during global climate meetings. However, when it comes to implementing these projects, they do very little. What shocked me the most was the report that suggested if countries had, in fact, studied the data in the early nineties when concerns were raised, we would have a much more positive outlook today. Spoiler alert: Experts predict a frightening future.

The documentary explains how wind energy is thought to be among the best and cleanest energy sources because it has little negative impact on the environment, and therefore, reduces the reliance on sources that create fossil fuels. In China and the US, wind turbines are being placed in coastal regions, open plains, and mountains areas, making them a constant source of energy from the continuing high winds. The turbines gather kinetic energy through air in motion and use it to generate electricity

More good news! Roofs are being replaced with greener options across American cities to combat rising temperatures. In 2001, Chicago covered 20,000 square feet of its city hall roof with vegetation. It was reported to have made a 50-degree difference in temperature to the building, which resulted in a reduction in cooling and heating costs and overall energy demand in comparison to a nearby tar roof building.

Solar power is believed to be more popular with individual households today than other energy sources. This might be because it was reported by a European government that installing the panels can also make homes more cost efficient. Although solar panels are easily accessible, meaning people can take more control of their energy use rather than relying on large scale government projects such as wind farms, they are extremely costly and only produce energy for half the day due to reliance on sunlight.
