Social Media

Social media is a tool that is becoming quite popular these days because of its user-friendly features. Social media platforms like Facebook, Instagram, Twitter and more are giving people a chance to connect with each other across distances. In other words, the whole world is at our fingertips all thanks to social media. The youth is especially one of the most dominant users of social media. All this makes you wonder that something so powerful and with such a massive reach cannot be all good. Like how there are always two sides to a coin, the same goes for social media. Subsequently, different people have different opinions on this debatable topic. So, in this essay on Social Media, we will see the advantages and disadvantages of social media.

When we look at the positive aspect of social media, we find numerous advantages. The most important being a great device for education. All the information one requires is just a click away. Students can educate themselves on various topics using social media.

Moreover, live lectures are now possible because of social media. You can attend a lecture happening in America while sitting in India. Furthermore, as more and more people are distancing themselves from newspapers, they are depending on social media for news. You are always updated on the latest happenings of the world through it. A person becomes more socially aware of the issues of the world. In addition, it strengthens bonds with your loved ones. Distance is not a barrier anymore because of social media. For instance, you can easily communicate with your friends and relatives overseas. Most importantly, it also provides a great platform for young budding artists to showcase their talent for free. You can get great opportunities for employment through social media too. Another advantage definitely benefits companies who wish to promote their brands. Social media has become a hub for advertising and offers you great opportunities for connecting with the customer.

Despite having such unique advantages, social media is considered to be one of the most harmful elements of society. If the use of social media is not monitored, it can lead to grave consequences. It is harmful because it invades your privacy like never before. The oversharing happening on social media makes children a target for predators and hackers. It also leads to cyberbullying which affects any person significantly. Thus, the sharing on social media especially by children must be monitored at all times. Next up is the addition of social media which is quite common amongst the youth. This addiction hampers with the academic performance of a student as they waste their time on social media instead of studying. Social media also creates communal rifts. Fake news is spread with the use of it, which poisons the mind of peace-loving citizens.

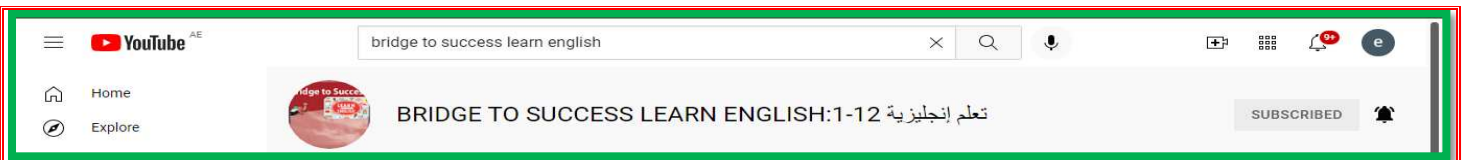

In short, surely social media has both advantages and disadvantages. But, it all depends on the user at the end. The youth must particularly create a balance between their academic performances, physical activities, and social media. Excess use of anything is harmful and the same thing applies to social media. Therefore, we must strive to live a satisfying life with the right balance.

Choosing a Career

Career is a very important thing in one's life. Whatever career path you choose to follow, it will impact your life greatly. Your career will define your status in a society in addition to your lifestyle. In other words, your career will determine your social circle and relationships. Therefore, it is extremely important to choose the correct career path. From a very young age, we aspire to be something or the other. While someone aims to be a doctor, some wish to become a painter.

To begin with, our career choices depend on a lot of things. Thus, it is important to consider all factors before choosing a career path. You must consider a number of factors before deciding on your career. Firstly, always assess yourself thoroughly. You must understand your area of interest to choose a career. After that, you look for the opportunities available as per your area of interest. Now that you are aware of what you like and dislike, you can easily look for occupations matching your passion. Make a list of the occupations you can get into following your interests. Most importantly, acquire the skills for the career option you are interested in. Ensure you earn the qualifications and degrees for it. Try taking training programs to enhance your skills. This will give you an upper hand in knowing whether you are correct in choosing the specific career plan. Furthermore, create an impressive resume which can help you get the right opportunities.

What's more, there are steps you need to take before achieving your career goal. As they say, success doesn't come overnight. You must work along the way to accomplish your goals. There is always hope if you have the will. Firstly, create profiles on different job portals to attract the employer's attention. When you maintain your profile well, you will be able to get good career opportunities. Moreover, always maintain your network. Build a solid network and create sources in the field. This way you can update yourself with the latest happenings in the industry. In addition, try to attend the related seminars and workshops that happen related to your career choice. You will meet influential people of the same field who can broaden your thinking.

In short, always remember to stay determined. You can easily achieve your career goal if you set your mind to it. In other words, people usually distract themselves easily. You must not do so and focus on your career path to achieve your goals efficiently.

Digital Technology

Within the developing world we are constantly being surrounded by change in our society and the way that we function within it. Digital technology stands as one of the fastest evolving fields in and only promises to keep growing as time continues. The different companies and corporations that represent these technologies are producing the latest and greatest devices we see every year, which do an excellent job of obtaining the public's interest and approval without knowing very much about the companies themselves. Finding ways to make life easier more convenient or improve living standards for everyone in the community are what technologies are all about.

Digital technology may give us many advantages in our everyday life, as well as benefiting our wellbeing. Online communication supporting existing relationships with friends and family can benefit our self-esteem and social connectedness. It can also make it easier to stay connected with friends and family while living abroad. Another primary advantage of digital technology is that it removes all boundaries. Without logical, technological, or geographic limitations we have a truly global economy available to us 24 hours a day, seven days a week, from literally anywhere with a data connection.

Despite the several benefits of digital technology, it brings about a number of drawbacks. Technology waste our precious time. Actually, people mostly used these kinds of technological devices in their most of the time and waste their precious time doing unimportant activities. Modern technological devices and gadgets are the most distracting things nowadays. It distracts people from their work, study, and many more, and the results are they waste most of the time by using these devices instead of work or study. People lost their interest in their goals and ambitions for which they have to work hard to achieved and waste their precious time in using such kind of irregular activity. One of the worst things about modern technology is technology reduces the creativity of the people. Creativity is something like finding some kind of new, interesting, and unique ideas in everything and implementing them in real, and these creative ideas come from deep thinking. But by the use of technology, they busy their minds in using only modern technological gadgets. So, they definitely lose their creativity.

In conclusion, the technological revolution will only continue—and we must learn how to adapt to all of this new technology. There are advantages and disadvantages to every advancement made, so it is impossible to deem technology a good or bad thing. The only thing we can do is try to utilize our newfound knowledge and resources to improve our world, rather than destroy it.

Communication

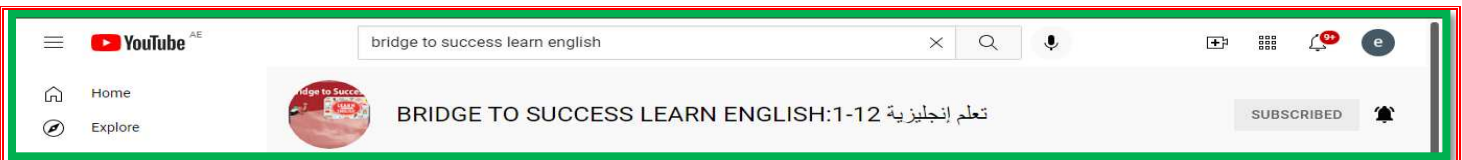

Nowadays the way many people interact with each other has changed because of technology.

In what ways has technology affected the types of relationships people make?

Is this a positive or negative development?

It is evident that technology has transformed the ways of communication and influenced relationships in a variety of ways. In my opinion, there are both positive and negative effects of this.

The principal way in which relationships have been affected is that they tend to be at a distance rather than face-to-face. The advent of the internet has made it easy for business owners to communicate across the world, with remote job opportunities one call away. Online educational programs are available for people residing in different countries, and it is no longer a dream to attend live classes from the comfortable environment of a home. Not only this, the social platforms like Facebook, Twitter, and YouTube have revolutionized relationships, be it making online friendships with people from other countries or staying in touch with loved ones. Based on this perspective, technology has influenced relationships in a positive way.

However, despite these advances, the quality of interaction has significantly declined in several respects. If people are developing most of their relationships online, this means that they may also have less fact-to-face contact. This kind of contact on a personal level is important for human beings to feel wanted and a part of society. This may be a particular problem for children's social development as they used to be seen playing out on the streets but are now too often indoors. Technology can also mean people are detached from what is going on around them even when they are out, as can be seen by the many people staring into their mobile phones as they travel or walk around.

In conclusion, technology has brought some positive development in the ways people interact with each other. However, there are also some negative impacts of technology on the types of relationships people make.

Careers or Vocations

I'm sure you've heard the quote "If you love what you do, you'll never work a day in your life." But does that seem like a pipe dream to you? Many people go to work each day with thoughts of the weekend already on their minds, hoping to get through the eight hours and get home as soon as they can so they can live their 'real lives'. Their work is not only not fulfilling, it may be draining, leaving them feeling exhausted and depleted. If this sounds like you, you're probably pursuing a career rather than a vocation. What's the difference and how can you dedicate your working life to something that truly matters? Here are some ideas.

While a career is more goal-oriented than a job, it's still focused on making money to pay for the things that really fill your heart such as your family, hobbies, and travel. Maybe you got there because it seemed like what you wanted, or you were told it would be a good move, or maybe it fell in your lap. Though you may be very good at your career and have spent years in school or training to get where you are, you still think of it as something you do to pay the bills and you strive to keep your career and personal life separate so you can have 'balance'.

A vocation is similar to a career in the sense that it pays the bills and allows you to have the freedom to pursue your hobbies and take care of your family. However, if you are pursuing a vocation, you never feel like you're going through the motions or that you're simply working to get through to the weekend. A vocation is a calling and something for which you have a driving passion. If you have a vocation, you feel you're working for a purpose and this provides you with a deep sense of fulfillment. Careers and vocations can actually be the same 'job'—the difference is how you feel about it and what type of personal satisfaction you get from it. To put it simply, a career may give you satisfaction but a vocation brings you joy.

Finding your passion is all about tapping into what brings you joy, fulfillment, and personal satisfaction. Looking at your hobbies and what you do in your spare time can be a good place to start if you really don't know what you're passionate about. Think about what you loved to do as a child to see if there are clues there. Ask yourself the question, "What would I be 100% happy doing for the rest of my life even if I never got paid for it?" When you really start to think in this way, you'll be surprised at how quickly the answers come to you.

We all deserve to have a vocation that fills us with satisfaction and joy. When you pursue a vocation as your life's work, you benefit from the experience and those you serve benefit as well. It's never too late to re-evaluate your work and make a change.
