The Farm

"My grandparents said that we can do our project about their farm," said Hessa. "The landscape around the farm is breathtaking! I reckon that you'll love it!"
I don't think so, I'll be surrounded by sand and heat! Sarah thought to herself but said, "I'll go unless there's no phone reception!"

Hessa laughed, "You won't have time to be on your phone. We'll be too busy enjoying the fresh air, taking care of the animals and doing our project!"
When she heard this, Sarah's expression changed; she didn't know what to say. Hessa didn't seem to notice.

After the long drive, the girls walked towards the front door of the farmhouse. Sarah spotted a cat and froze. Luckily, the cat then walked slowly away so Sarah could follow Hessa quietly, letting out a sigh of relief the moment the door was closed behind her.

After everyone had greeted each other and Sarah had been introduced, Hessa's grandfather spoke to Sarah, "Welcome to our family farm. Even though it might not be the wealthiest, or the largest, we consider this to be one of the best farms in the UAE. You see, this land was passed down from generation to generation. My father was generous enough to give me this farm."

"Thank you for inviting me," Sarah smiled. "I am looking forward to my stay and including information about your wonderful farm in our project."

"Of course," he said, returning her smile, "we are a traditional working farm, and everyone joins in the work. Despite being used to city life, are you also looking forward to helping with our farm work?"

Sarah swallowed her growing panic. "Of course," she said, forcing a smile.

Later, Hessa asked her, "Sarah, could you feed the goats while I help grandmother?"

"How about I collect dates?" Sarah replied, trembling.

Hessa looked at her friend. "Here, I'll show you something. Look how small and cute these baby goats are. They're harmless. Come on, pet them," suggested Hessa.

Sarah closed her eyes as she put her hand on the baby goat's head. "What a tiny texture! I never knew they had a soft coat!" she said happily.

What did Sarah gain from her trip to the farm?

Bygone Port

I have been waiting to visit the ancient harbour at Bygone Port for many years. It was so popular among tourists in the 1950s and 1960s that many people came to visit the port to see the buildings. I learned all about sea exploration in the region. I learned even more about the ancient conditions from the harbour. The tour guide's information

People say that the harbour is one thousand years old. Others say it is over five thousand years old. You can see that the buildings near and around the port were built more than a thousand years ago. Many buildings are in other countries.
