Reading Comprehension Test

Theme: Places, Environment, and Science

Reading Passage:

The environment around us is a mix of natural and man-made places. Cities are examples of human-made environments, full of tall buildings, highways, and bustling shopping malls. People come to cities to find jobs, go to schools, and explore entertainment options. Despite the opportunities, cities can sometimes feel crowded and stressful.

In contrast, natural environments such as forests, mountains, and lakes offer peace and beauty. These places are home to various plants and animals and provide space for activities like hiking and camping. However, natural environments are also at risk from human activities, such as deforestation and pollution.

Scientists are working to balance the needs of people and nature. For example, technology helps design eco-friendly buildings and highways that reduce environmental harm. Some cities have even introduced more green spaces and encouraged the use of bicycles to protect the environment.

Part 4: Inference and Justification

Scenario:

A new community center was built in a small town, offering indoor and outdoor spaces for people to gather. The center includes a large park, a playground for children, and meeting rooms for activities and events. Residents enjoy the center, but some are concerned that too much of the town's natural environment was removed to create the space.

Sarah, a local teacher, supports the center, saying, "This is a place where families can spend quality time together. The benefits for the community are huge!"

On the other hand, David, a wildlife enthusiast, says, "We lost many trees and animal habitats. I wish we had balanced the construction with protecting nature."

Two months later, the town planned to build another community center in a nearby area.

bicycles and public transportation instead of cars. Planting more trees in parks and along the streets can also improve air quality and make the city greener.

Part 2: Plan

Prompt:

Write about the most important environmental problem in your city.

Model Plan:

- Problem: Air pollution from traffic and factories.
 - How it started: Increased number of cars on the road and unregulated industrial growth.
 - Effects: Poor air quality leading to health problems like asthma and a negative impact on wildlife.
 - Solutions: Encourage the use of electric vehicles, create stricter rules for factory emissions, and plant more trees to absorb carbon dioxide.
- =====

Part 3: Essay

Prompt:

Write about the most important environmental problem in your city.

Model Answer:

The most important environmental problem in my city is air pollution. This issue started with the increase in the number of cars on the roads and the growth of factories that do not follow strict emission rules. The effects of this problem are serious, as many people experience health issues like asthma and allergies. The pollution also harms animals and plants by damaging their natural habitats.

To solve this problem, we should encourage the use of electric vehicles and public transport to reduce car emissions. Factories should follow stricter environmental regulations to decrease harmful gases. Additionally, planting more trees in urban areas can improve air quality and create a healthier environment for everyone.

Part 4: Inference and Justification

Scenario:

A new community center was built in a small town, offering indoor and outdoor spaces for people to gather. The center includes a large park, a playground for children, and meeting rooms for activities and events. Residents enjoy the center, but some are concerned that too much of the town's natural environment was removed to create the space.

Sarah, a local teacher, supports the center, saying, "This is a place where families can spend quality time together. The benefits for the community are huge!"

On the other hand, David, a wildlife enthusiast, says, "We lost many trees and animal habitats. I wish we had balanced the construction with protecting nature."

Two months later, the town planned to build another community center in a nearby area.

Part 4.1: Inference Question

What will the town decide about building another community center?

Model Answer:

The town will likely decide to build another community center, but they may try to include more environmentally friendly features to address the concerns raised by some residents.

Part 4.2: Justification Question

Why is your answer to the inference question the best answer?

Model Answer:

This answer is the best because the first center was popular with many residents, which shows its benefits. However, the concerns from people like David about the loss of natural areas suggest that the town may try to balance the new construction with efforts to protect the environment. For example, they might preserve more green spaces or plant new trees around the center.

Part 1: Vocabulary and Grammar

- B) Balancing conservation and development
- C) Building highways in forests
- D) Preventing people from visiting natural places

Part 3: Inference and Justification

Scenario:

A small town decided to expand its roads to reduce traffic. However, the expansion required cutting down a large number of trees in the area. Some residents were unhappy with this decision, saying that it harmed the environment and made the town less beautiful. Others were pleased because the new roads reduced travel time and made commuting easier.

8. What might the town do to address residents' concerns?

- A) Stop building new roads altogether
- B) Plant trees in other areas of the town
- C) Remove the new roads and return the trees
- D) Increase the traffic to make the residents happy

Part 4: Text—Inference and Justification

Text: Sarah had always loved the outdoors. One Saturday morning, she decided to go hiking in the nearby mountains. She packed her backpack with water, snacks, and her camera to take pictures of the beautiful scenery. As she climbed higher, she encountered a narrow trail. She carefully walked along the path, taking her time to enjoy the view. Sarah reached the top and was rewarded with an amazing view of the valley below. It was a perfect day, and Sarah felt proud of her accomplishment. On the way down, she met other hikers, some of whom asked for advice on the best route. Sarah smiled and pointed them in the right direction before continuing down the mountain.

Part 4: Inference Question

What was Sarah's reaction when she reached the top of the mountain?

- a) She felt tired but happy.
- b) She was upset because the view was not as expected.
- c) She felt proud of her accomplishment.
- d) She decided to go back down immediately.

T2-2024-2025-Grade 7-Revision

مراجعة الفصل الدراسي الثاني

Reading Passage:

The Importance of Recycling

Recycling is the process of collecting and processing materials that would otherwise be thrown away as trash and turning them into new products. This helps reduce the need for raw materials and energy, and reduces the amount of waste that ends up in landfills. Recycling has a significant impact on the environment. It helps conserve natural resources, reduces pollution, and decreases the energy used in the production of new goods. For example, recycling paper saves trees and water, while recycling aluminum reduces the need for mining bauxite, which can harm ecosystems.

There are many types of materials that can be recycled, including paper, glass, plastic, and metal. However, it is important to sort these materials properly before recycling. Improper sorting can cause contamination, which makes it difficult or impossible for recycling plants to process the materials. For instance, if plastic and metal are mixed together, they cannot be recycled together and must be separated.

T2-2024-2025-Grade 7-Revision

Part 4: Text—Inference and Justification

Text:

Animals play a crucial role in maintaining the balance of ecosystems. Without them, our environment would be drastically different. For example, bees help pollinate flowers, which is essential for plants to grow. On the other hand, animals such as wolves help control the populations of smaller animals, maintaining the health of the ecosystem. However, many species are now at risk due to habitat loss, pollution, and poaching. It is our responsibility to protect them and the environment they live in.

Part 4: Inference Question

Why are bees important to the environment?

Write about the importance of protecting animals and their habitats.

Include information about:

- Why it is important to protect animals.
- How protecting animals helps the environment.
- The role of humans in ensuring animals can survive.

Model Answer:

It is important to protect animals because they help maintain the balance of ecosystems. For example, pollinators like bees are essential for plant growth, which supports food chains. Protecting animals also helps the environment by preventing the loss of biodiversity and preserving natural habitats. Humans play a vital role in ensuring animals can survive by reducing pollution, protecting habitats, and creating laws to prevent hunting and poaching. Without human action, many species could face extinction, which would disrupt ecosystems.

Model Answer:

Bees are important because they pollinate flowers, which is crucial for plant growth. This is stated in the text: "bees help pollinate flowers, which is essential for plants to grow." Without bees, many plants would not survive, affecting the entire food chain.
