Mary Kingsley

Mary Kingsley is a famous scientific writer and explorer. She was from London, England. She was born there in 1862. She was the daughter of George Kingsley and Mary Bailey. Her father was a doctor.

Mary's first journey was to the Canary Islands. In 1895, she arrived on the west coast of Africa. Her plan was to travel up the Ogoouè River in Gabon. She wanted to study the way people lived in that part of the world. On 5th June, she left the port of Glass and travelled by boat to Ndjolè. When she was traveling she changed to a canoe because the boats couldn't travel further up the river. As she was going up the river, she stopped to collect fish. She collected 65 different types of fish. Three of them were named after her. In 1897, Mary wrote a book about her travels. It is called Travels in Africa.

Mary was also a nurse. She helped ill people in South Africa but she got ill herself. Sadly, she died in 1900 in Cape Town at a very young age. She will always be remembered because she did things that no other woman her age had ever done before.

EXAMPLE: Mary Kingsley had the same name as her mother.

The People at the Top of the Hill

Tamara wondered about the people who lived at the top of the hill. She saw them every once in (a, is, red) while in town, and they seemed (youngest, interesting, listen) in an unusual way. The man (rode, lied, bear) his bike almost everywhere, and when (part, cook, he) brought the car to town, he (ready, always, office) had two dogs with him. The (block, woman, little) worked at the hospital, and every (once, now, keep) in a while Tamara would see (for, sky, her) running on Saturday morning.

“George, what (red, do, glad) you know about the people who (live, carry, short) in the old Stevens place?” Tamara (asked, was, foot) tying the laces of her athletic (kinds, play, shoes) in preparation for an afternoon training (bird, run, want) with her friend.

“Not much,” answered (George, diver, shiny), who was leaning against a tree (sit, and, us) stretching. “He rides his bicycle everywhere, (over, pond, even) in the most dreadful weather, and (at, I, if) think he’s some kind of scientist (save, fly, and) does research at the university. She (arm, dish, is) a big deal at the hospital, (maybe, today, rider) even the president or whatever they (join, call, warm) the person who is the boss.”

“(Let’s, Fix, Joke) run up the hill and take (if, a, or) look at their place,” suggested Tamara, (drink, adding, chair), “we have to do more hill (running, skate, spring) anyway.”

The hill was steeper than (trip, band, they) thought, and they were breathing too (hard, end, rest) to talk until they reached the (game, going, flat) part at the top. As they (snowed, slowed, without) down, a voice behind them said, “(That, Him, Oven) hill doesn’t leave much breath for (cooked, talking, shop), does it?”

A man on a (money, laugh, bicycle) pulled up beside them, breathing much (long, more, sign) easily than anyone should have after (a, if, to) climb like that. Before the two (at, spin, of) them could say a word, the (cage, man, cross) added, “Come on up to the (fruit, house, felt). You can get a drink of (leaf, tiny, water) and then run down with my (wife, sled, cook) You two are training for the (loud, state, draw) cross-country championships, right? I don’t read (minds, wishes, shut), I just recognize you from the (deep, sports, point) page of the papers.”

With that, (he, on, pick) sped ahead of them, and the (stormy, jump, two) runners couldn’t wait to meet his (wife, ranch, green) and find out more about the (classes, people, pretty) at the top of the hill.
