The Big Race

My name is Sara, and when I decided to take part in a national running race, I asked my old PE teacher, Fatema, to train me. She is retired now and I always liked her - compared to my other PE teachers, who were a bit lazier. At first, I was worried that Fatema was always very strict with me. She made sure I followed her rules and was always pushing me. Soon, though, I knew she was like this in order to stop me being a runner-up.

It was the day of the race and we were off! I didn't think about all the fans in the crowd, cheering on different runners. I was, though, sad that my brother wasn't there to see me - he always supported me. However, I knew Fatema was there in the crowd and I focussed my thoughts on her. In the end, I came third in the race. I know I tried my best and I wasn't too upset about not winning. I also met the other racers after and we became friendly. When I got back

Jabal Jais Blog

Jabal Jais is located in RAK. At 1,934 m high, it is the tallest mountain in the UAE. Driving to the mountains is such an incredible experience. In winter, it gets really cold, and the temperature drops to -5 degrees Celsius. It even snows there! I've always wanted to see snow in UAE!

Jabal Jais is such a wonderful place that it's a very popular destination and there are plentiful activities there for the entire family. Most people go hiking, but others camp for a day or two and some even go stargazing. A friend of mine witnessed a meteor shower there once. I reckon I could plan a trip to see one myself one day. However, they don't happen very often.

Cross-fit training

Cross-fit training is a programme of training based on the work of Greg Glassman. It involves a range of high-intensity exercises, weightlifting and movements like squats which include a number of muscles. It avoids exercises like bench presses and leg curls which only build strength in one area. The idea is not to build muscle strength in these single areas but rather to take a whole-body approach to strength and fitness.

Since cross-fit training focusses on many different types of exercise which help muscle growth and strength in all areas, it can help people qualify for a range of professional athletic events. Many professional athletes have mentioned cross-fit training in helping them achieve first place trophies in various competitions. Which type of exercise is included in cross-fit training?

a. weightlifting

b. bench presses

c. leg curls

Cross-fit training

Cross-fit training is a programme of training based on the work of Greg Glassman. It involves a range of high-intensity exercises, weightlifting and movements like squats which include a number of muscles. It avoids exercises like bench presses and leg curls which only build strength in one area. The idea is not to build muscle strength in these single areas but rather to take a whole-body approach to strength and fitness.
