UNIT 7

Reading 1: Read the following text and answer the questions below:

Science technology

Science technology can be found in nearly all aspects of our life. For instance, if electricity had never been discovered, heaters, lights, and television would never exist. Electronic components found in radios, televisions, watches, and calculators are now smaller and more reliable than before. Advances in electronics are responsible for what is called the computer age. Because of the computer technology, information can be processed in seconds.

At one time, computers were extremely expensive. They were rarely found outside the laboratories and large businesses. Since they are now more economically made, computers can be found everywhere. Computers facilitate travel plans by providing travel agents with easy access to flight schedules, prices, and seating availability. Businesses use computers to track purchase and sell stocks and perform many other functions. Computers are also used as educational devices in schools and to guide satellite and space probes.

The battle against disease and illness has also gained much from science. Safer surgical procedures are now in use including those for organ transplantation surgery. Many procedures have been improved because of the development of specialized medical instruments. Some instruments enable physicians to see inside the body without making a single incision. Others can carry out essential bodily functions, such as pumping blood or breathing.

Medical researchers are making progress toward the production of artificial blood, which may eventually eliminate the threat of contracting diseases transmitted during blood transfusions. One such disease is acquired immune deficiency syndrome, also known as AIDS. This fatal disease attacks the immune system, and weaken all the organs.

Question 1: Read the text and decide whether the following statements are true (√) or false (X):

1. The computer age is due to the progress of electronics. _____
2. Computers are still expensive and are limited to laboratories. _____
3. Space exploration doesn't make use of computers. _____
4. Computers have played an important role in developing medicine. _____

Question 2: Match the words in the box with their definitions.

Aspects – purchase – procedures – essential – eliminate

1. _____ very important and vital.
2. _____ to remove and get rid of.
3. _____ particular parts of something.
4. _____ a series of actions and steps.
5. _____ to buy.

UNIT 8

The Night

Reading 2: Read the following text and answer the questions below:

Why does it seem to be so difficult for teenagers to get up in the morning? Do they go to bed too late? Are they lazy? Or is there another reason beyond their control?

A growing body of evidence from sleep researchers suggests that young people need to sleep a lot. Mary Carskadon, a researcher in the biology of sleep, has shown that teenagers in the USA sleep an average of seven and a half hours a night during the week. However, 25 percent only sleep six and a half hours a night. To be fully awake, so that they can perform well, teenagers need about nine hours of sleep. Carskadon's work shows that the popular belief that children need less sleep as they develop into young adults is false.

New research also shows that getting up in the morning really is a big problem for young people. Tim Roenneberg and his team at the University of Munich have shown that sleep times change as we become older. In our early teens, bed times and wake times move to later and later hours. This pattern continues until about the age of 19 years for women and 20 years for men. After this, the situation changes and young people start to have earlier bed and wake times. Roenneberg believes that this is an effect of biology and not an effect of society.

Another problem for young people is that there is a Western cultural belief that we should be active in the morning. We say, for example, 'early to bed, early to rise, makes a man healthy, wealthy and wise' and 'the early bird catches the worm.' However, this ignores the scientific evidence. Children and adults prefer mornings, but teenagers and young adults prefer afternoons or evenings for both academic and physical activities.

The timetable of school and college life in many countries does not take into account the sleep problems that teenagers face. So what's the conclusion? Well, a later starting time for school and college would improve the mental ability and performance of students during their morning lessons. Perhaps we should think about starting lessons at 10.00 or 11.00 a.m. if we want our young people to be smart.

Writing 2: Frightening Story

Write a story (120-150 words) about a scary and frightening experience that happened to you two weeks ago.

Our lives are filled with ups and downs and unexpected events. Two weeks ago, my friend - Reem- and I had a sleepover in my house yard. It was a quite dark night, the weather was foggy.

I fixed the tent and lit a bonfire to roast marshmallows. My sister made some snacks. Everything was perfect as planned. Reem and I were laying in our sleeping bags eating pizza. Suddenly, we heard strange sounds. I thought it was the wind. Later, a nasty strong smell filled the air. So, we got out of the tent, but the smell got worst.

All at once, I heard Reem screaming loudly, so I ran to see what was wrong. To my surprise, I saw a dead rotten animal stuck in my neighbor's fence, when I got closer, I found out it was my favorite dog. I felt scared and terrified. I immediately called 999 asking for help. Minutes later, the neighborhood was glowing with red and blue lights.

Apparently, my two weeks missing dog was trying to runaway but it got stuck in the fence and died. I will never forget that day.

How to...
MAKE YOUR OWN JAM
TEXT CAROLINE DUJIS

For 4 jars of jam, you need:

- 2kg (4.2lb) fresh fruit (for example, blackberries, raspberries, blueberries or strawberries), whole, with stalks
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice to counterbalance the sugar and to help thicken the jam
- 1 kg (2 cups) sugar with pectin (fully mixed) to set the jam and extend the shelf life. • 4 clean jam jars
- large jam pan for easy cooking
- wooden spoon with long handle • funnel
- handy, padded cloths • jar labels

1. Slice the fruit and cut into small pieces. Remove any bruised bits.

2. Put the fruit in the pan and stir in the lemon juice and sugar. Bring to the boil on medium heat, stirring continuously. If it cooking properly it will keep making bubbles with stirring. Allow the mix to boil briskly for 4 minutes. Use the skimmer to remove the foam and any seeds, stones or pits.

3. Do a test: Tap a spoonful of jam onto a saucer that has been in the refrigerator. Let the jam cool for 1 minute. Lift the saucer; if the jam doesn't run off, it is thick enough to set well.

4. Pour the hot mass of fruit through a funnel into the jars. Fill the jars to just below the brim.

5. Place the lids on the jars and turn the jars upside down. The hot air will cool and shrink, creating a vacuum inside the jar. Label with the date.

6. Stored outside the refrigerator, the jam will keep for approximately 6 to 12 months. Opened jars should be kept in the refrigerator.

Reading 3: Read the following text and answer the questions below:

Time for a change?

Are you tired of travelling to the office every day? Are you bored with your colleagues? Do you hate your boss? Then, perhaps working for yourself is the answer.

Professor Simon Parker from Durham University looked at information about both employed and self-employed people in the UK and the USA in the 1990s. He found that people who run their own businesses enjoy high levels of job satisfaction. This is because of the flexibility and independence that working for themselves gives them. The ability to organize their own working hours is more valuable to them than earning a lot of money. However, they usually work longer hours than employees. The survey showed that, on average, self-employed men work between 54 and 56 hours a week.

Women who run their own businesses work about 17 hours a week than female employees. Self-employed women work 47 hours a week, while female employees work about 30. Professor Parker said that people who run their own businesses worked longer hours because their financial situation is more uncertain.

About one in ten people in Britain is now self-employed. Annette Fishburn used to earn £ 40,000 a year when she had a full-time job. She used to run training courses for small businesses. A year ago, she decided to become self-employed and started her own travel business. Her company, Spirit lifestyle organizes holidays to Umbria in Italy. She now pays herself £ 25,000 a year. She sometimes works 100 hours a week, but she insists that it's worth it. 'Although some days I work for 16 hours, other days I can go and meet a friend for coffee or go shopping.' She says that she is able to manage her own time to suit her, and this flexibility means more to her than money.

At first, it was hard, but things have gone well. Mrs Fishburn now has more time with her husband Andrew. The couple, who have no children, plan to spend more time abroad - thanks to the business. 'My friends think I'm mad to work these hours,' she says. 'But I love my job.'

Write for and against essay (120-150 words) about people using e-books.

Everything in life has two sides, bright and dark one. In the last few years using e-books has been so important. Some people are for but others are against. In fact, I totally agree with using e-books for some reasons. This essay discusses my opinion and the opposite side about this topic.

On the one hand using e-books has many advantages. First, it is lighter than traditional books. For example, an e-book could be downloaded in your phone. This is a good point. Also, it is available all the time. This means you can read whenever you want. In addition, it is cheaper. As an example, some books are available online for free. As you can see, these are all positive points about using e-books.

On the other hand, using e-books has some disadvantages. First, it may have viruses. This means, your device might get hacked. Plus, new books are not free. This is a bad point. Moreover, reading in your device might affect your eyes. All in all, these are some negative points about using e-books.

To sum up, personally speaking I am for and I think so because it is available 24/7. Also, it is cheap. Finally, people will always have different opinions over this topic with many reasons to support their point of view.

Sport is one of those things that make our lives really worth living. In one way or another, everyone is involved in sports, whether they play or watch it, or just know someone who does either. Although most of people seem to be interested in sports, not all of them consider it useful.

On the one hand, we must admit that sport takes a lot of energy and time and it can be really exhausting. Sportsmen train all day long and have to follow a diet, which does more harm than good. Besides, some sports such as snowboarding or rock climbing can be rather dangerous. As a result, people often have serious injuries. Moreover, sport makes you unhappy when you lose, which can lead to psychological problems.

On the other hand, sport helps us to keep fit and to stay healthy. Among the benefits of regular exercise are a healthier heart, weight control and less illnesses. In addition, sport helps us to overcome difficulties and gives a chance to gain self-confidence. What is more, sport makes us more organized and better disciplined in our daily activities. It is also a good way to spend free time and to make friends.

To sum up, I would argue that sport is very important for people's health. However, it is not necessary to become a professional sportsman. If you go in for sports just for pleasure, to stay in good shape or to relax, then sport is definitely useful.
