Eid Al-Adha (عيد الأضحى)

أجتهد : يعقوب عبدالله المرباتي

Eid Al - Adha is held every year on the tenth of Thu Al-Hijah. Muslims celebrate their pilgrimage to Mecca.

Families start preparing for this day week before hands. They buy new cloth whole family; they also prepare or buy sweets and things to be served for the Families who can afford buy an animal to be slaughtered as a sacrifice and to give to the poor. Women clean everything in the house. The national flags are also hung. Streets are decorated with red and white lights.

On the first day, people start with going to the mosques early in the morning for prayer. Then, men slaughter their sacrifices and give its meat to the needy. After that, they start visiting their closest relatives to congratulate them and wish them many returns. On this day, people forgive each other. Young boys and girls wear new clothes and begin visiting others singing and laughing all the day. They also visit their neighbours, who give them presents. Each family gathers in the house of the head of the family and has a meal there. In the evening, the youngest begin visiting Malls and walk happily along the streets.

This is one of the most important ceremonies that Muslims celebrate every year.
