The Causes and Effects of World Poverty

There have been many studies of world poverty and how to reduce it. Absolute poverty can be defined as a state where people cannot get basic human needs such as food, shelter, clothing and adequate health care. The essay aims to highlight the three main causes of poverty in the world. If these can be identified, efforts to reduce it will be more effective.

It can be argued that the most important reason for poverty is over-population. There are too many people in some countries. As a result, there are not enough resources to support them. The result is hunger and poverty.

A second reason for world poverty is lack of education. Without education, it is very difficult for people to get jobs and earn money, so they fall into the poverty trap.

Finally, the third main cause of poverty is poor health service in a country. In many poor countries, people who are sick cannot get good health care. Because of this, people cannot work well or learn new skills.

To sum up, it is possible to find other causes of world poverty like unemployment and high cost of living, but it is essential to focus on the main causes to limit or prevent terrible consequences caused by this problem.

The Causes and Effects of Crime

There have been many studies of crime and how to reduce it. Crime can be defined as an illegal act in which someone can be punishable by law. The essay aims to highlight the three main causes of crime. If these can be identified, efforts to reduce it will be more effective.

It can be argued that the most important reason for crime is poverty. Some people engage in criminal behaviour like theft and kidnapping simply because they are deprived of the basic means of livelihood.

A second reason for crime is drug addiction. When a person becomes addicted to drugs, they will neglect family and work. As a result, they turn to criminal activities such as shoplifting and fraud to get money to buy drugs.

Finally, the third main cause of crime is economic inequalities. There is a wide gap between the rich and the poor. Therefore, poor people resort to crimes like robbery and kidnapping to show their anger on the high class.

To sum up, it is possible to find other causes of crime like unemployment and peer pressure, but it is essential to focus on the main causes to limit or prevent terrible consequences caused by this problem.

The Causes and Effects of Human Mistakes

There have been many studies of human mistakes and how to reduce them. A mistake can be defined as an action or an opinion that is not correct. This essay aims to highlight the three main causes of human mistakes. If these can be identified, efforts to reduce them will be more effective.

It can be argued that the most important reason for human mistakes is lack of sleep. If you don't get enough sleep, you won't think as clearly or quickly, which may result in serious effects.

A second reason for human mistakes is anxiety. Anxiety or stress can create a lot of issues in the workplace and in life in general. It can make an individual unprepared mentally to work, which may lead to awful accidents.

Finally, the third main cause of human mistakes is distractions that are present in the workplace and within the worker. Distractions take a worker's mind off their job and can lead to dangerous results.

To sum up, it is possible to find other causes of human mistakes like poor training and lack of communication, but it is essential to focus on the main causes to limit or prevent terrible consequences caused by this problem.

The Causes and Effects of Smoking Among Students

Smoking is one of the most common problems among students nowadays. It starts as a way of having fun but ends as an addiction. There have been many studies of smoking and how to reduce it. This essay aims to highlight the three main causes of smoking. If these can be identified, efforts to reduce it will be more effective.

It can be argued that the most important reason for smoking is to try it and to discover the world of those who smoke, then it becomes a bad habit which is difficult to quit. As a result, the smoker suffers from breathing problems such as asthma and heart diseases.

A second reason for smoking is family problems. They think a cigarette would relieve stress, which is a false belief. However, smoking causes a lot of anger for the addict, especially when they lack cigarettes. This problem has an effect on their social life as well as their health.

Finally, the third main cause of smoking is peer pressure and acceptance. As a result, it can make the body weak and may cause lung cancer, which has no cure and often leads to death.

To sum up, it is possible to find other causes of smoking like copying adults or just for pleasure, but it is essential to focus on the main causes to limit or prevent terrible consequences caused by this problem.

The Causes and Effects of Divorce

There have been many studies of divorce and how to reduce it. Divorce can be defined as the legal ending of a marriage or a relationship between couples. This essay aims to highlight the three main causes of divorce. If these can be identified, efforts to reduce it will be more effective.

It can be argued that the most important reason for divorce is financial hardships. In many cases one of the partners is not happy with the overspending habits of the other. This can lead to a troubled relationship and result in a divorce.

A second reason for divorce is the lack of communication among husbands, wives and children. Many partners are very busy working hard to be able to fulfill their needs. As a result, they do not have enough time to talk about their problems, which ends in the possibility of divorce.

Finally, the third main cause of divorce is infidelity. Partners' betrayal can lead to distrust and can affect friendship and sex within a marriage. The consequences are destructive and difficult to recover.

To sum up, it is possible to find other causes of divorce like intellectual and social incompatibility, and domestic violence, but it is essential to focus on the main causes to limit or prevent terrible consequences caused by this problem.
