Eng.201 Unit 2: Problem Solution Essay

The title: Solutions of Air pollution

The introduction

1. It is a fact that ... (topic) ... is one of the serious environmental problems that threatens life on the earth in this modern age. It has some harmful impacts on all creatures: people, animals, and plants.
2. Many academic studies have discussed the different aspects of (this issue).
3. One estimate (study/survey) reports that around ... percent (million) of people
4. In this essay, I explore (discuss/shed some light on) the problem of ... (topic) ... and I highlight some effective solutions and the roles that people, companies, and governments can play to limit this problem (phenomenon).

Body paragraph (1)

The first solution to (topic) is the important role of people. Some might argue that the actions of people will not affect much. However, I believe that people can definitely help a lot to reduce ... (topic) First of all, they can (role 1) They can also (role 2) Add to this, (For example,) (role 3) these practices would help to reduce the negative impacts of (topic)

Body paragraph (2)

Another solution to (topic) is the essential role of companies. To illustrate, companies can help control the problem of ... (topic) For example, they can make products from friendly environmental materials that can reduce the harm to the environment. They can also donate some money to support researchers and scientists who work on finding effective solutions of this issue. Besides, businessmen should It is certain that these approaches would reduce the harmful effects of (topic).

Body paragraph (3)

Moreover, the role of the governments is crucial (vital). For instance, they can set strict rules and laws that make the situation better. In addition, they could arrange campaigns to raise people's awareness about the dangers of ... (topic) ... and warn people to avoid its negative (consequences/results). Furthermore, governments can also encourage companies and civil organisations to pay more attention and take actions against (topic). To add more, governments can offer some positive incentives to companies that make eco-friendly products and keeps the environment clean. On the other hand, they should impose taxes and fines on people or companies that make the situation worse.

The conclusion

In conclusion, it is evident that ... (topic) ... is a serious problem and a big challenge, but we can defeat (combat) it. I believe individuals, companies, civil communities, businessmen, policy makers and governments should work hard together to find creative solutions to save the world we live in and fight the problem of (topic) The journey towards a better world is long, and it requires all these efforts (contributions) to foster (have) a healthier and safer future.

A template of writing a review of a product

Some important sentences we can write in the introduction.

The title: A review of

The introduction

Last Friday, I was shopping online (in City Centre) and I saw a nice there. I usually read online reviews about any product before I buy it. However, in this case, I just decided to buy this (these) because I needed it (them), and the price was low. Besides, there was only one item left in my size, and it was (they were) the same item I wanted. Overall, I was glad that I made that decision, and I could buy this jacket (these shoes).

Some important sentences we can write in body paragraph (1) = the positive sides.

1. There are several (many) positive things that I like about the (jacket / shoes). The first good point is that it's affordable (cheap). It cost me just five dinars. Really, it's not expensive if I compare it with other products. I had 50% off on the new shoes. So, it was a bargain. In fact, it's the best price I've ever paid for a quality pair of shoes.
2. Another positive aspect (point) is that it is made of high-quality materials which are eco-friendly and it's easy to recycle them. That's why it is a brand liked by many users.
3. In addition, the materials all strong and heavy duty. The shoes are (The jacket is) made of very good leather, plastic, and rubber. (metal/aluminium/ wood/paper/glass).
4. It is a well-known brand that is made in Germany (Finland/ USA/China/Canada/ Korea).
5. One more point is that it is waterproof and so durable. Add to this, it is (they are) practical, and flexible compared to my old shoes (jacket).

Some important sentences we can write in body paragraph (2) = the negatives.

Although I like this product a lot, there are two things that I didn't like about it.

1. Firstly, the shoes are (jacket is) not as stylish as I would like. It has an older design, but I would prefer a simpler style. When my friends ask me why I choose this design, I feel a little uncomfortable (embarrassed). That is because it happened many times.
2. Secondly, I am not satisfied about the colour as I wished to buy a darker colour like black or grey, but it was (they were) not available then.
3. The final negative point about this product is that it is (they are) quite heavy. It's a bit uncomfortable, especially when I must wear it (them) for a long time.

Some important sentences we can write in the conclusion.

Overall, the product is great (wonderful), and it is (they are) the best choice for the price. I highly recommend buying it (them) for many reasons. In fact, I am going to buy another one because it's practical, affordable, flexible, durable. In addition, it is light and smooth, comfortable, and easy to use (= user-friendly). In my view, you will never regret buying it. It has a 4-star rating from shopping applications, and websites.

Introduction

1. item (1) and item (2) are very important (beautiful/famous/good/ useful/well-known/pivotal/interesting/practical) cities (countries/stages/methods/ things/jobs/subjects/sports/devices/inventions) in (people's lives/Bahrain/the world).
2. For most people (children/students/teenagers), these two hold very special position (importance/value/importance/meaning) in their hearts and minds.
3. In fact, although item (1) and item (2) may look similar in some aspects (ways), they are completely different in others.
4. In this essay, I explore (highlight/discuss/show/shed some light on/present) some similarities and differences between item (1) and item (2)

Body paragraph (1)

On the one hand, the first similarity between ... item (1) and ... item (2) is that they play a crucial (vital) role in a person's life (future/personality/skills / knowledge /experiences) + a supportive sentence (1) In addition, both ... item (1) and item (2) + a supportive sentence (2) Moreover, they + a supportive sentence (3) = (explanation: reason, result /fact / survey experience/recent studies/reports/ a documentary).

Body paragraph (2)

On the other hand, there are some differences between. item (1) and item (2) To begin, item (1) + a supportive sentence (1). In contrast, item (2) + a supportive sentence (2). To add more, item (1) + a supportive sentence (3). However, item (2) + a supportive sentence (4).

Conclusion

1. In conclusion, it is evident (obvious) that item (1) and item (2) share some features (characteristics), but they differ in others. They both + (some similarities in short) , but they (some differences in short)
2. In my point of view, recognising these similarities and differences between item (1) and item (2) can be helpful in many ways.
3. I believe it is vital (important/ necessary/effective/useful/practical/beneficial/supportive) because it leads to a better understanding and more knowledge about (the future).

Plastic Waste

It is a fact that plastic waste has become a major environmental problem. Many academic (scientific) studies have discussed (explored) this issue (phenomenon). One estimate (study) says that around eight million tons of plastic enter the oceans every year. This is a problem because plastic waste looks unattractive. In addition, small bits of plastic can get into the bodies of fish, birds, and animals and make them sick. In order to solve these issues, individuals, companies, and governments all need to act. In this essay, I explore (highlight) the problem of plastic waste and highlight some effective solutions that can help control (combat) it.

To begin, some people might argue that the actions of individual people will not affect plastic waste much. In my view, however, people can definitely help if they follow these three rules. First, they should reduce the plastic they use. This means they can buy products that come in glass or metal, not plastic. Second, people can also reuse plastic products. For example, large plastic bottles are perfect for storing things. Third, people can recycle plastic products and reuse them again. This will surely be great help to the environment.

In addition, companies can also help solve the problem of plastic waste. To illustrate, they could make products from other materials, such as glass or metal, instead of plastic. Besides, they could stop using plastic to wrap the items they make. In my experience, many things that people buy have a lot of excess plastic around them, so this approach would definitely reduce plastic waste.

Moreover, governments can help deal with the issue of plastic waste. In particular, they could encourage companies and individuals to use less plastic. Add to this, they could ban plastic shopping bags and require stores to charge a small fee for paper ones. Additionally, governments could raise taxes for companies that use a lot of plastic and reduce taxes for companies that use other materials.

In conclusion, it is evident (clear) that the plastic waste is really a complex problem, but it is not undefeatable. I strongly believe that we need the joint actions of individuals, companies, civil organisations and policymakers. We also need creative and effective solutions to control this environmental threat. The journey towards a cleaner planet requires each of us to take part in fostering a safer and more sustainable future.

Water Scarcity

Water scarcity is a major issue around the world, affecting millions of people and causing problems with farming, health, and economies. To effectively deal with this growing problem, everyone needs to take responsibility and play a role. Individuals, companies, and governments must all take action to save water. Many (scientific studies have discussed this issue in depth. In this essay, I explore the problem of plastic waste, and I highlight some effective solutions that can help control it.

To begin with, individuals have a significant role to play in this field. Every person can help conserve (save) water by making small changes at home. For instance, people can fix leaks and taps at home, schools, hospitals and everywhere. They can also use water-efficient devices that control and organise using water. This can lead to water saving. These actions may seem small, but when many people adopt them, the overall impact can be enormous.

Another solution is the role of businesses (factories). They need to take responsibility, especially if they use a lot of water. Above all, companies can adopt new technologies that minimise using water and find innovative (creative) ways to recycle water. By doing this, they not only save water, but also set a positive example for others to follow. This surely promotes (supports/leads to) sustainability and saving water which is the source of life.

Last but not least, governments can make a major impact by implementing policies that encourage water conservation and by investing in infrastructure improvement. In other words, effective policies can ensure that water is used more efficiently. Additionally, governments can motivate (help/encourage) individuals and businesses to adopt water-saving practices by raising awareness and offering incentives (rewards) like tax reductions.

In conclusion, it is evident that water scarcity is a serious and complex issue that significantly threatens the lives of humans, animals, birds and all creatures on the earth. Although water scarcity is a serious challenge, we can be overcome it. In my opinion, individuals, businesses, and governments should take responsibility and work together. By taking the above-mentioned steps (solutions), we can ensure that there is enough water for everyone, both now and in the future.

A review of a pair of trainers

Recently I was shopping online, and I saw a pair of trainers on sale. I usually read reviews before I buy anything online. However, in this case, I decided to buy them because I needed new trainers. The price was low, and there was only one pair left in my size. On the whole, I was glad that I make that decision.

There are several things that I especially like about these shoes. First, they're really light. Compared with my old shoes, the new ones weigh about the half. This means my legs feel less tired after walking. In addition, they're better for the environment than other shoes. I didn't know this when I bought them, but they can apparently be recycled easily. The final good point is the price. I got them for just BD 4.5, and good trainers are usually not as cheap as that. In fact, it's probably the best price I've ever paid for quality shoes. It's really a bargain.

Although I like the shoes a lot, there are two things that I find less appealing. First, the shoes are not as stylish as I would like. They have a really bright, colourful design, but I would prefer a simpler style and darker colours. Because the design is so bright, people often ask me where I got them. At first, I thought this was funny, but it's becoming more frustrating now because it happens almost all the time. Second, I was disappointed that the shoes were wrapped in plastic inside the box. These shoes are supposed to (should) be good for the planet, so I feel that the plastic wasn't needed.

Overall, the shoes are great, and I definitely recommend buying them to anyone who would like to wear comfortable shoes made of high quality materials and at a very good price. In my view, you will never regret buying them. In fact, I'm going to buy another pair of shoes, but I'll look for a less colourful pair next time!

Answer the following questions.

1. What's this review about?
2. When did the writer buy them?
3. How did he or she buy them?
4. Why did he buy them? Mention two or three reasons.
5. Do you think he regrets buying them? Why? Why not?
6. What are three positive points of the trainers mentioned in the 2nd paragraph?
7. What are two negative points about the trainers mentioned in paragraph 3?
8. What's his overall opinion about the shoes?
9. Why does he recommend it?

Eng. 201 Unit (3) Writing a review about my new (AI) app

Recently, I was browsing online, and I saw an (AI) app on sale. Usually, I read reviews before I subscribe to any software. However, in this case, I just decided to go for it because I needed a new (AI) tool, the price was low, and it offered exactly the features I needed. On the whole, I'm glad I made that decision.

There are several things that I especially like about the app. First, it's really user-friendly. Compared with other apps I've used; this one is much easier to use. This means that I spend less time figuring things out and more time working. Additionally, it's better for data security than other apps. I didn't know this when I subscribed, but it uses the latest encryption methods because it was designed with privacy in mind. The final good point is the price. I got it for just $10 a month, and good (AI) tools (apps) are usually not as cheap as that. In fact, it's probably the best price I've ever paid for an app like this.

Although I like the app a lot, there are two things that I find less appealing. First, the app is not as reliable as I would like. For example, it tends to crash unexpectedly, and I would prefer a more stable performance. Because it crashes sometimes, it can be quite frustrating when I'm in the middle of something important. In the beginning, I thought this was a minor issue, but it's becoming more annoying now because it happens almost all the time. Second, I was disappointed with the customer support service. This app is supposed to offer efficient problem-solving, so I feel the slow response times weren't needed.

Overall, the app is great, and I definitely recommend buying it. In my view, you will never regret buying it because it is user-friendly. It also uses the latest encryption, and the price of this app is reasonable. In fact, I'm going to keep my subscription, though I hope for some improvements in reliability and customer service next time!

Two Different Experiences: Secondary School and College

Secondary school and college are very important stages in our lives. For most of us, both of them hold a very special position in our minds and hearts. In fact, although secondary school and college may look similar in many ways, they offer completely different experiences. Many academic studies have discussed this topic in depth. In this essay, I shed some light on some similarities and differences between these two important stages in our lives.

To begin with, both secondary school and college play crucial roles in shaping a person's future. They provide subjects that includes a lot of information. They are also essential for acquiring (getting) knowledge. Additionally, both of them help students to learn and develop new skills. they encourage social interaction and extra activities which allow (help) students to develop interpersonal skills and. Besides, they both explore students' interests outside the classrooms. In other words, they both play an important role in shaping students' personalities and awareness.

However, there are some differences between secondary school and college. First, secondary school has a stricter schedule (timetable). This means that teachers closely monitor students' progress. In contrast, in college, students are responsible for managing their time and the courses and subjects they choose to learn. Moreover, the teaching style in college focuses more on the learners. It promotes (encourages) research and self-study, as opposed to the textbook-based approach in secondary school. Add to this, in the university, students usually study some focused (special) subjects like medicine, engineering, science, education, or arts, while in the secondary school, students study for developing general knowledge and skills.

In conclusion, it is evident that secondary school and college share some features, but they differ in others. While secondary school and college share the common goals of educating students, they differ in their styles of teaching, level of freedom given to students, and overall learning atmosphere. I believe that recognising these similarities and differences can help students and their parents to move smoothly from one stage to the next and make the best of their educational experiences.

Eng. 101 Unit (4) Compare contrast essay about shopping online and in shops

Shopping Online and in Shops or Malls

Shopping online and in stores play an essential (important) part of our daily lives. Some people prefer traditional in-store shopping, while others support online shopping. They aim to fulfil consumer needs and wants, but they offer unique experiences and benefits. In fact, although the two methods of shopping have some similar aspects, they differ in others. Many academic studies have discussed this topic in depth. In this essay, I shed some light on some similarities and differences between shopping online and in stores.

On the one hand, the first similar aspect is that both online and in-store shopping share the goal of providing goods and services to consumers. Shoppers can explore (see) a wide range of products, from clothing and electronics to groceries and household items. Secondly, both methods offer sales, discounts, and promotions to attract customers and boost (increase) sales. Furthermore, customer service plays a crucial role in both experiences; online shopping often includes live chat support and detailed product descriptions, while in-store shopping provides personal interactions that can offer immediate assistance and advice.

On the other hand, despite these similarities, online and in-store shopping differ significantly. To begin, online shopping is very comfortable. For example, it allows consumers to shop 24/7 from their homes. Besides, people do not need to travel, so it reduces (saves) time spent in moving from one shop to another and people avoid waiting in long queues. However, online purchases often require waiting for delivery, which can be delayed. In contrast, in-store shopping customers are able to take their purchases home immediately. Additionally, shopping in stores allows people to try on clothes, testing electronics, or inspecting (checking) the quality of goods, which can be crucial for certain types of purchases. On the other hand, online shopping includes reading reviews and ratings from other customers.

In conclusion, both online and in-store shopping share some features and differ in others. While online shopping offers convenience (comfort) and a broad range of products with just a few clicks on a mobile phone or a laptop, it lacks the face to face enjoyable experience which people have in-store shopping. Conversely, traditional shopping offers the benefit of immediate ownership. The choice between online and in-store shopping depends on individual preferences. In my opinion, recognizing these similarities and differences can help people enjoy the best shopping experience and get the best prices for the quality goods. It can also help consumers make better choices about where and how they spend their money.

Comparing and contrasting two important cities in Bahrain: Manama and Muharraq

Manama and Muharraq

Manama and Muharraq are two important cities in Bahrain. Each of them has its own special (unique) features and history. The two cities hold a great value and position in the hearts and minds of the Bahraini people. In fact, although Manama and Muharraq look similar in some ways, they are different in others. In this essay, I explore some similarities and differences between these two wonderful Manama and Muharraq.

On the one hand, Manama and Muharraq play a crucial (vital) role in the history of Bahrain. In addition, they are neighbouring cities in the northeast of Bahrain, and they are connected by Muharraq Bridge. Manama is the current capital city, and Muharraq is the old capital. Besides, the population of both cities is with a mix of Bahraini people and many expats, mainly from India, Bangladesh, Pakistan, Philippines, Egypt, Yemen, Jordan and other Arab countries. Add to this, both Muharraq and Manama have very good facilities which offer high quality services to both Bahraini and non-Bahraini people. To illustrate, there are modern hospitals, health centres, clinics, and modern schools. There are also good roads, clean streets, and government offices. Add to this, many tourists visit these two cities. Millions of tourists from all around the world come to Manama every year.

However, there are some differences between Muharraq and Manama. To begin, although Manama and Muharraq are the biggest and most famous cities in Bahrain, Manama is much bigger, noisier, and more crowded. About 300,000 people live in Manama, but nearly only 150,000 people live in Muharraq. Add to this, Manama is more vibrant and multicultural. There are more parks, supermarkets, cafés, restaurants, and shopping malls. Moreover, the lifestyle in Manama is more liberal and open, compared to Muharraq which has a higher number of native Bahraini families. To illustrate, we can see many tourists from around the world in Manama. They enjoy their time in the modern hotels, cafés, restaurants, shopping malls and cinemas. They visit Bahrain National Museum, Bab Al Bahrain, Bahrain fort, and the famous mosques. They also enjoy shopping in the shopping malls like Avenues, City Centre and Seef mall. Lastly, Manama is Known as the economic centre of Bahrain, with many banks, government offices, and international companies.

In summary, it is evident that Manama and Muharraq share some features, but they differ in others. They both play important roles in Bahrain's history, identity, and future. However, they differ in size, population, lifestyle, and diversity. Manama represents the country's modern side, while Muharraq keeps its historical roots and culture. In my view, recognising these similarities and differences can help to develop them. I believe they both provide a picture of Bahrain's past, present, and future.

Eng. 101 Unit (4) Compare contrast essay about eBooks and printed books

eBooks and printed books

Printed books and electronic books (eBooks) are very important sources of knowledge and culture. For most of us, both of them hold a very special position in our minds and hearts. In fact, although Printed books and electronic books may look similar in many ways, they offer different experiences. Many academic studies have discussed this topic in depth. In this essay, I shed some light on some similarities and differences between these two important types of books.

On the one hand, the first aspect of similarity is that both eBooks and printed books share the purpose of conveying (giving) information, telling stories, and providing entertainment. In addition, authors (writers) write them to share their ideas and feelings with the readers to explore new worlds and learn new things. In other words, whether in electronic or printed form, books offer a way to preserve (keep) knowledge, culture, and history for future generations. Moreover, people have become familiar with both of them due to the spread (popularity) of modern technology which is used with both Printed books and electronic books (eBooks).

However, there are some differences between eBooks and printed books. To begin with, one of the primary advantages of eBooks is their convenience. eBooks can be stored on digital devices such as eReaders, tablets, and smartphones, allowing readers to carry an entire library in their pocket. This makes it easy for readers to access their books anytime and anywhere. Moreover, with eBooks, people can adjust the font sizes and built-in dictionaries. This makes the reading experience more enjoyable for many users. Another significant difference is that printed books offer a sensory experience. The warm feelings of holding a book, the smell of the paper, and the act of turning pages are real fun added to the reading experience for many people. Many readers feel more enjoyment and connection to the printed books. Another difference is that printed books do not require batteries or electronic devices. This makes them reliable and accessible without the need for technology. Many people believe that printed books are easier to use and more comfortable. In contrast, for many people eBooks can be purchased and downloaded instantly at any time at lower prices than the printed books. Besides, eBooks are also more environmentally friendly, as they do not require paper, ink, or transportation. Conversely, (In contrast,) printed books support local bookstores and libraries, fostering community engagement.

In conclusion, it is evident that both eBooks and printed books share some features, but they differ in others. They both have unique advantages. eBooks offer convenience and accessibility, while printed books provide a sensory and more enjoyable reading experience. In my opinion, the choice between eBooks and printed books depends on individual preferences. As technology continues to evolve (develop), the coexistence of both formats ensures that the joy of reading remains accessible to everyone.
