B- Below are people talking about what they would like to eat (1-5). Choose one British restaurant (A- F) for each person that best matches his/her situation. Write the correct letter next to the numbers. There is one extra description.

1 F

Ann says: "I had to get up early this morning. I'd like to sit and have a cup of coffee and biscuits somewhere quiet and pleasant before I start my shopping."

2 C

Howard says: "It's my lunch hour and I'm in a hurry, a glass of milk and a sandwich would be ideal. I would love a steak and vegetables on the side, but I don't have the time!"

3 A

The Martins say: "We're so tired! We've been shopping all day and we're hungry. The children don't eat much, they always start playing around before we've finished."

4 D

Jack and Sue say: "One of the best things about being on holiday is that you don't have to rush your meals. We can take the opportunity to try something new - perhaps a foreign dish!"

5 B

Daisy and Minnie are talking.
Daisy: "It's my birthday and I'd really like something special. What about something from abroad?"

Minnie: "That'd be fun for you, but I'd rather not eat foreign food myself."

A 'Serve Yourself': Eat as much as you like for only £5! Choose from dozens of delicious soups, salads, cold meats and cheeses. For the younger members of the family, we offer reduced prices along with free colouring books and pencils. Open Noon-3 and 5-10 p.m.

C- Read the texts carefully.

Nanotechnology

What's the big idea?

When people try to make predictions about the future, they usually get them completely wrong, like the prediction made by T.J. Watson, the head of IBM, in 1943: 'I think there may be a market for five computers in total in the world.' Today, about 45 million PCs are sold every year in the USA alone and computers are part of our everyday lives. But what surprises does technology have in store for us in the future? The answer is nanotechnology.

Nanotechnology is the science of building tiny machines, so small that they are invisible. To give you an idea of the size of these machines, the difference between a sandstone and the planet Earth! Most scientists agree that nanotechnology will change our lives in the future - but how? At the moment it's difficult to predict whether this new technology will be like a wonderful dream, or a terrifying nightmare.

The dream

In the 1966 science fiction film Fantastic Voyage, an inventor develops an amazing new way to cure diseases. He shrinks a group of scientists and their submarine and inserts (injects) them all into a patient. They then travel around the patient's body, visiting the different organs and repairing them. Of course, this is just a film - but the reality of nanotechnology is not very different. Scientists are already making nanobots, tiny robots that are smaller than a virus. In the future, doctors might be able to inject these into a patient, and the nanobots will travel around the body and repair the diseased parts.

The nightmare

Some people are worried that nanotechnology could be difficult to control. Nanobots might escape into the environment and damage people, plants and animals. Others have even more serious worries. Eric Drexler is a scientist who makes predictions about the future. In his book "Engines of Creation" he predicted the invention of nanobots. He also described a special kind of nanobot that could make a copy of itself using the materials around it - and this is where the nightmare begins. In Michael Crichton's book "Prey", nanobots copy themselves so quickly that they eat all the materials around them and then look for more ... and more, and more, eventually 'eating' the world. Some people are worried that this might really happen. The most extreme predictions (which very few scientists believe) say that nanobots could destroy the entire planet in about three hours!

A. Circle the best answers:

1. T.J. Watson said.....
 - a. the market for computers was tiny.
 - b. IBM made five computers a year.
 - c. IBM computers were the best in the world.

2. Nanotechnology makes.....
 - a. tiny sandstones.
 - b. the buildings of the future.
 - c. machines that people can't see.

3. Fantastic Voyage.....
 - a. shows a doctor helping tiny patients.
 - b. was a true story.
 - c. shows what might happen in the future.

4. Eric Drexler
 - a. invented nanobots.
 - b. writes about science.
 - c. makes copies of science books.

5. In the novel "Prey".....
 - a. nanobots destroy the planet.
 - b. nanobots make a new planet in three hours.
 - c. people eat nanobots.

(5x2=10 marks)

B. Answer the following questions:

1. Why did Eric Drexler think nanobots might be difficult to control?

... Because they can make a copy of themselves using (eating) the materials around them.....

2. How fast could nanobots damage the plant according to some scientists?
 In (about) three hours.....

compulsory.

(2x2=4 marks)

~~3~~ → Four marks.
1 mark.
