HOTELS
A	The Salisbury Hotel is a top hotel with a health club, swimming pool, shops and fully-equipped business centre. Within the hotel are three international restaurants, one with a French chef. The hotel is conveniently located close to the motorway, though airport users should allow plenty of time because traffic is usually heavy.
B	The newly-built Aviemore Hotel is small but in the centre of the city's cinema, restaurant and club district. Rooms are clean, comfortable and reasonably priced, although the food is rather basic. There is an electronic games arcade in the hotel.
C	The Westmore Hotel is in beautiful countryside to the east of the city. It is peaceful and inexpensive, although the accommodation is basic. There are opportunities nearby for sailing and diving, and a lot of interesting routes to explore on foot.
D	The Cumberland Hotel is well placed for sightseeing on a busy city street, in a district which is full of interesting shops. Rooms are expensive but comfortable and the hotel serves excellent food, typical of the area. A piano player entertains guests every night.
E	The Russell Hotel is close to the airport, and has quiet, comfortable rooms. However, the journey to the city centre can take time, and prices are above average. Delicious local food is served in the restaurant and its conference rooms and business facilities are excellent. The hotel is surrounded by woodland, offers a golf course, and there are pleasant walks around the nearby lake.
F	The Panda is an older hotel in the heart of the city, with ground-floor rooms opening onto a country-style garden. Prices are reasonable. There is a sports centre and a small cinema. A band performs every evening in the hotel restaurant, where excellent French food is served. Airport buses pick up from the hotel.

The curtains are closed. The light comes from the screen that John is staring at. He has checked his Hotmail, watched some videos on Youtube, updated his Facebook status and now he is playing a game. If you asked him how long he has been online, he will probably say about half an hour. In fact, it has been 9 hours. John, like millions of other teens worldwide, is addicted to the internet.

2 C

Now that we spend almost one third of our leisure time online, some health experts are worried that this is affecting our health. Apart from physical problems like bad backs, eye strain and weight gain, some addicts stop socialising and exercising to spend more time online. When they cannot access the Internet, they feel anxious, impatient and depressed.

3 E

Internet addiction is now considered a real illness. In South Korea, almost 90% of homes have internet access and experts believe that up to 30% of teens use the Net too much. Special internet-free camps have been set up there for addicts that include physical activity, advising sessions and workshops for hobbies. Even Google, the Internet's number one search engine, advises its employees against letting technology take over their lives and recommends switching off for a part of everyday.

4 A

So how can you cut down on the Internet? Well the first step is to write down how long you are online. Take regular breaks of five minutes and slowly increase them until you can leave the Internet alone for a day or two. Take up a sport or a hobby and go out to the park, the cinema or the mall with friends who don't care about the Internet. Remember that the Internet is useful and fun, but don't let it take over your life!
