Structures:

We use the Simple Present to:

Expressions used:

Always -susually - -often sometimes - never - frequently rarely - every...

- -describe routines and regular/habitual actions or permanent states; express a present state or a truth (scientific actions or facts).
- To form the affirmative form we use the infinitive without to (love) and to form the 3rd person singular in the affirmative form we add s but:

- vowel + y add s
- consonant + y i and add es
- o, ss, sh, ch, \times add es

In the negative and interrogative we use the auxiliary To do, in the Simple Present (do or does):

| Affirmative | Negative | Interrogative | | | |
|---------------------|---------------------------------------|--|--|--|--|
| subject + main verb | subject + auxiliary (neg) + main verb | auxiliary verb + subject + main verb ? | | | |

ABUTASSNFFM-93969712 Present continues:

It describes an action which is happening now:

Am - is - are (verb) + ing

Ex:

am eating an ice cream now.

He (is watching) TV at the moment.

She is cooking the dinner.

It is running fast.

We are painting the wall.

You are reading very well.

They are cleaning the garden.

What are you doing? ______ I'm writing a letter.

What is he doing? - He is singing.

What is she doing? She is tidying.

Other uses for the present continue tense:

It is used for expressing actions which are going to happen in the future, and are prepared for, reasonable predicted, or arranged for.

EX:

- I'm visiting my fiancée.

What are they doing next month?

- They are buying a car.

Phrases are used in daily conversations:

Hello, how are you? Nice to see you.

Really? That's interesting.

How exciting? I'm sorry to hear that.

What do you think? What about you?

See you later! (tomorrow, next week) Goodbye!

Communication is transferring feeling, information, ideas and thoughts from someone to another. There are many ways for communication among the human beings. There is the spoken languages, like Arabic and English, etc, there is the sign language, the body language, and writing, etc.

Body language is defined as the gestures and the nods, which the human does for transferring his feelings and the ide, etc. to another person. It consists of the facial expressions, nods and gestures, which the person do.

Many jobs needs to study and understand the body language through their careers and professional lives. Police officers, politicians, teachers, etc. they need them to work out their problems or to finish their jobs well. Moreover, we need to understand the body language to identify if the people who are speaking to us are attentive or not.

Police officers study body language to analyze the movements of the criminals to be sure if they are telling the truth or lying on them.

Politician too need to use positive body language to convince their voters to vote for them.

Teachers need to identify the attentive students, and the sleepy or who are not attentive with them in classes.

On the other hand, there are means of communications. We can communicate through phones, cell phones, internet and e-mails, etc.
