READING 2 (Items 6-12)(7 marks)

Read the text. Then, for each item, shade in the bubble next to the correct option.

I've always wanted to have a laptop, but I could never afford a good one because they cost a lot. One day I began searching online for cheap laptops, and I found used laptops that were from factories, but had been updated. I thought these laptops looked like a good idea because they would have been gone through checks and tests to ensure they had no viruses or damage and were in a good working condition.

The deal looked fantastic and they were just as good as the laptops being sold in computer shops. They had been under warranty and were being sold at half the price of the ones in the shop. Later that day, I made the decision that I would get a laptop from a factory shop using my Internet account.

I went through the usual process of clicking on the 'Buy It Now' link, confirming the purchase and making the payment. Once that was done, I received an e-mail saying that I had bought the item and it would arrive on the 22nd of May.

On 21st of May, I went to check my post office box. Inside I found a large brown parcel and immediately knew that the only thing it could be was the laptop. When I finally opened the parcel and looked at the laptop, it was everything I had ever wanted. It was black, it had a perfect screen with no scratches, a smart brown lid, and a full set of white keys. Everything was in perfect working condition.

I have had the laptop for about a year now and I am using it perfectly. I have all the applications I need, including word processing, Excel, and PowerPoint. However, I couldn't connect the laptop to the wireless network because Bluetooth software was not installed.

Actually, the laptop has been a good bargain. Even it was still costly, it would have been double the price if I had purchased it from the high street shops.

9. In the end, he decided to buy a laptop from _____.

- a high street shop a friend a factory shop

10. He received it _____ the agreed day.

- after before on

11. It had all the applications except _____.

- Bluetooth Excel PowerPoint

12. Overall, he _____ that he made a good decision.

- is not sure feels doesn't feel

READING 3 (Items 13-20)(8 marks)

Read the text. Then complete the tasks.

'David Copperfield' is the first book by Charles Dickens that I've ever read, and it will probably be my last! First published in 1850, it's a huge book more than 700 pages. However, the story is very simple and straight-forward. It tells us about the life of a poor country boy called David Copperfield, from his early childhood until early middle age.

His early years are very difficult. After his father dies, his mother marries again and David is mistreated by new stepfather. He manages to make some friends at school. However, then his mother suddenly dies, and he is left completely in the control of his stepfather. He is taken out of school and sent to earn money in a factory in London, where he is miserable. He runs away to his aunt's house where things improve and he completes his schooling and starts work. However, when his aunt loses all her money, he has to face more difficulties. But in the end he achieves everything he has ever wanted.

I don't know what to think of this book. I found the first two hundred pages very boring. David Copperfield is actually the novel's least interesting character, and this part of the book deals almost entirely with him! In fact, the book doesn't really come alive until almost the middle of the story when David's aunt loses all her money. After that, David and his friends really start trying to repair the mistakes they have made in their lives.

The book's hero is, in my opinion, too serious and too moralistic. I managed to find some humorous parts - always my favourite thing in any book! - but not many, and the last part of the book is very strange. In the last 200 pages, Dickens really speeds up the action, and it's an odd feeling when a slow book suddenly starts moving quickly just before the end. So, very suddenly, Dickens kills one important character, exports several people to Australia, and sends two more to prison!

So, as I've said, I didn't actually like David Copperfield (the hero I mean), and I wouldn't have liked the book either, if not for the wonderful secondary characters. There is Agnes, David's good and wise childhood friend; the always in-debt Micawbers; the evil Uriah Heep; the sentimental, kind Mr Peggotty; and so many other people to keep track of ... but all good fun anyway!

Task One: For each item, write a short answer (not more than FOUR WORDS).

13. In what century was the novel written?

14. How many other books by Dickens has the review-writer read?

15. What kind of writing does she especially like?

16. Who is the hero's biggest enemy as a child?

Task 2: For each item, shade in the bubble next to the correct option.

17. The review-writer's favourite part of the book is the _____.

beginning

end

18. She especially likes _____.

the hero himself

the other characters

the plot

19. The hero has many difficulties in his life, especially with _____.
