Our solar system is a big place. At its center is the Sun, a giant star that gives us light and heat. Orbiting the Sun are eight planets, including our home planet, Earth. The Moon is Earth's only natural satellite. It orbits Earth and reflects sunlight, making it appear to glow in the night sky.

Beyond Earth, there are seven other planets: Mercury, Venus, Mars, Jupiter, Saturn, Uranus, and Neptune. Each planet is different in size, temperature, and atmosphere. To learn more about the solar system, scientists use telescopes. These powerful instruments help us see distant stars and planets.

The Sun is about a million times larger than Earth. The distance between Earth and the Sun is about a hundred million kilometers.
