One of the most endangered animals that live in the north of the earth is the polar bears which live in the Arctic Circle. Polar bears stay warm in very cold temperatures because they are covered in two layers of fur. Polar bears are excellent swimmers and have short claws to help them walk across ice and snow. Grizzly bears can be found in Asia, Europe, and North America. Grizzly bears like to eat plants, mammals, and fish. They can run over thirty miles per hour. Even though grizzly bears are very big and strong, their cubs only weigh one pound when they are born. The Giant Panda lives in China and has black and white fur. This bear eats up to thirty pounds of bamboo every day. The Giant Panda is an endangered animal because many of the forests where it lives have been destroyed.
