ReadingReading Comprehension:

- 1 Tigers are the third largest land carnivores, they are ferocious. They are not only large; they are also fast. Tigers can sprint as fast as 40 miles per hour for short distances and leap as far as 30 feet horizontally. You might not think that such large, fast, and dangerous creatures need help to survive, but they do. Tigers have different names according to their age. A new born tiger is called a cub and a young one is called a whelp. The female is called tigress.
- 2 Despite all of the tiger's strengths, the future of the species is uncertain. Tigers face a very high risk of extinction. It is estimated that at the start of the 20th century, there were over 100,000 tigers living in the wild. By the turn of the century, the number of tigers outside of captivity decreased to just over 3,000. Interestingly, the most serious threats that tigers face come from humans. Humans have done considerable damage to the world's tiger population through hunting, but perhaps more damage has been caused through the destruction of habitat.
- 3 Tigers are hunted for many reasons. People have long valued the famous striped skins. Though trading tiger skins is now illegal, they are worth around $10,000 on the black market. Tigers have also been hunted as game. In other words, people hunt tigers solely for the thrill and achievement of killing them.
- 4 Though tiger population faces many threats, there have been some successes in conservation and preservation efforts. For example, Save China's Tigers, an organization working to restore the wild tiger population, successfully rewilded a small number of South China tigers, 35. These tigers were born into concrete cages from parents who were also captive and unable to sustain in the wild. This organization brought these tigers to South Africa and helped them learn the necessary skills for a predator to survive in the wild. Now, their number has become 130.
