comprehension

Read the newspaper editorial. Then answer true or false.

Dear Editor,

I enjoyed reading the article you featured last week about tabloid newspapers. I firmly believe tabloid newspapers these days go too far. One of the things people hold most dear is their privacy. The right to keep what only concerns you to yourself is fundamental. The rest of the world has no right to know things, such as who your friends are, how much money you make and how you spend it, what you do in your free time, or who you had an argument with.

Tabloids print stories like these about celebrities all the time. Do we have the right to know these things about them? Should celebrities' lives be completely exposed just because they are famous? Is it somehow OK because tabloids can make a lot of money selling these stories? The answer is a definitive no. How would you feel if a picture of you and a friend having an argument was taken without your consent and then printed for the whole world to see and judge your actions? I doubt you would enjoy that very much. You might even think about suing the paper. I believe that's what celebrities should do-sue tabloids that invade their privacy Ruling on these cases is no easy task, though. The problem is knowing when someone's privacy is being invaded and when it isn't, especially when some celebrities seem to chase publicity, not avoid it. One way of making that decision is to think in terms of what readers have the right to know. I have the right to know what directly affects me and the community I live in. I don't need to know, nor do I have the right to know, where some people traveled or which person has an eating disorder. That's none of my business..It's not that I think tabloids should stop being published altogether, but some changes must be made.

1-Daniel believes people don't care much about their privacy.	F
2- Ruling on when someone's privacy has been invaded is easy to do.	F

Write a paragraph about :- (An important Discovery)

Throughout history, humanity has made many remarkable discoveries that have transformed our understanding of the world. One such discovery that has had a profound impact on the course of human history is electricity. It's difficult to imagine life without it now, but just a few centuries ago, electricity was an enigma. The discovery of electricity stands as a shining example of how scientific inquiry and a willingness to explore the unknown can lead to game-changing breakthroughs that make the world a better place

The History of the Toothbrush

Since many people today like to have clean, bright white teeth, it is surprising that toothbrushes only became common in the twentieth century. But just because people haven't been using toothbrushes doesn't mean that they haven't always tried to keep their teeth clean and their breath fresh. People have cleaned their teeth in a variety of different ways for thousands of years. For example, they used a device called a chew stick. This was a small, thin stick, about the size of a pencil that people chewed on, to remove food and debris from their teeth. Chew sticks were made from special trees that smelled and tasted good so that they would also freshen the mouth and breath. Some form of chew stick was used all over the world for thousands of years. Another way that people cleaned their teeth was by rubbing baking soda or chalk on them. The first bristled toothbrush, or toothbrush with stiff hairs on the end, originated in China almost six thousand years ago. In 1780, the first toothbrush was mass-produced in England by William Addis. These toothbrushes were made of animal bone. The bristles on expensive toothbrushes were badger hair. By the early 1800s, bristled toothbrushes were in general use in Europe and Japan. As technology progressed natural bristles were eventually replaced by synthetic bristles. The first toothbrush with nylon bristles became available in 1938. The first electric toothbrush was invented in Switzerland in 1954. In January 2003, Americans chose the toothbrush as the number one invention that they could not live without.

Language Development in Children and Adults

Throughout history, there has been much debate over which language was the first" language. An ancient Egyptian pharaoh named Psammetichus I once tried to prove that that all humans had one natural language that they would speak if no other language was taught to them. Supposedly, he even conducted an experiment to discover which language children would speak naturally, without any instruction. According to legend, he gave two newborn babies to a shepherd. The shepherd was told never to speak to the babies, but to care for them and listen closely to hear what their first word would be. The babies spent their first year tending sheep with the shepherd, but the shepherd never spoke to them. One day, one of the babies cried out, "becos"—not surprisingly, a sound similar to the sound a sheep makes. However, this sound was also similar to the word for bread in the Phrygian language. Thus, Psammetichus I concluded that the Phrygian language must be the oldest and most natural language. Phrygia was an ancient civilization, located in what is now the country of Turkey. Today, linguists know that there is not any one language that is natural for humans to speak. A child will learn any language easily and naturally when he or she is exposed to the language at an early age. Linguists have studied language development thoroughly over the years. They would like to find out how children seem to acquire language so quickly and easily, yet for an adult, learning a new language is often a much more difficult and lengthy process. If adults could imitate the way that children learn a language, the language-learning process might become a lot easier!

1. Choose the main idea.

- A. Some languages are easier to learn than others.
- B. There is not one language that is more natural or better than other languages.
- C. There is one language that is the most natural for people to learn to speak.
- D. Adults do not learn language as easily as children do.

2. The first word one of the babies cried out was._____

- A. the Phrygian word for milk
- B. the Phrygian word for sheep
- C. similar to the sound all babies make
- D. similar to the sound a sheep makes

3. Psammetichus I concluded that._____

- A. the Egyptian language was the most natural
- B. the Phrygian language was the most natural
- C. no language was more natural
- D. sheep could speak the Phrygian language

4. A linguist is probably a person._____

The Lost Dutchman Mine

Legends of lost treasure are exciting, and there are many people whose hobby is treasure hunting. They give up months or even years of their lives searching for treasures that may or may not have ever existed . One legendary treasure that has been sought for over one hundred years is known as the Lost Dutchman Mine. Legend has it that in 1846, a man whose name was Waltz emigrated from Germany to the United States. He then traveled to Arizona in search of gold. One day, while he and another man named Wiesner were mining in the mountains, they found a deep vein of gold in the earth. They secretly worked on the mine, digging out the gold and hiding it nearby . One day while working at the mine, Wiesner had a fight with some other men and was killed. Waltz, upset about his partner's death, hid the entrance to the mine, took only enough gold to live on and left the area. He moved to a small farm some distance away, where he led a quiet life . Year later, he decided to marry a woman whose name was Julia. He told her about the mine and showed her the pieces of gold that he still had. He promised to share the gold with her, and they made plans to travel to the mine together. Unfortunately, before they could make the journey, Waltz became very ill. He drew a map showing her the location of the mine, and where he had hidden the gold that he had already dug. Soon after, Waltz died. Julia traveled to the mountains hoping to find the gold and the mine, but she never did . To this day, hundreds of treasure hunters still explore the mountains in Arizona looking for the lost mine .
