Jason: What do you usually do in your free time?

Rick: I have an unusual hobby. I fly planes.

Jason: That sounds exciting. How often do you do it?

Rick: I normally do it on the weekend. I really like to do aerobatics.

Jason: You mean, you perform stunts and stuff like that?

Rick: Yeah.

Jason: Wow! But isn't it dangerous?

Rick: No, not at all. It's really very safe. You should come along to the flying club sometime.

Jason: Sure. I'd love to go up in the air with you.

Rick: Up in the air? I fly model airplanes.

Jason: Oh, I see. That is an unusual hobby.

What are the people in the picture doing?

talking

What are they talking about?

flying planes

What is the plane doing?

stunts or aerobatics

stunt = an exciting action, usually in a film, that is dangerous aerobatic = flying upside down or in a circle

Is this a pastime you would like to do? Why or why not?

A: I like to go indoor climbing.

B: You mean, you climb walls?

A: I go to cooking classes once a week.

B: You mean, you learn how to cook?

Real Talk

You mean, + statement = a way to confirm you understand correctly stuff like that = that kind of thing

You should come along...sometime = a way to make an invitation

I see = I understand

What does stuff like that mean in each?

For example:

😊 I play football and basketball and stuff like that.

(stuff like that = other sports)

😊 I make the bed and cook dinner and stuff like that.

(stuff like that = household chores)

😊 I read email and play online games and stuff like that.

(stuff like that = online activities)

we often use the phrase I see to indicate that we understand something that we didn't understand before.

Who offers an invitation in the conversation?

Rick

What language does he use?

You should...

How does Jason respond?

Sure

Invite one of your friend to join you in one of your pastimes.

For example;

You must come to one of my games sometime.

In pairs, invite each other to do something.

Teaching Tip

When teaching pronunciation, familiarize students with the phonetic symbols you are most comfortable with. Then use those phonetic symbols frequently when teaching students the correct pronunciation of specific words and phrases. This will make it easier for students to learn to say new words correctly.

Additional Activity

Students play this game in two teams. Before they start, each team writes five sentences, expressing how often they do various activities. For example: Fahd plays basketball three times a week. Imad watches TV every night. The sentences should be written on separate slips of paper.

Team 1 gives a sentence to a student on Team 2, who acts it out for his or her team. Keep track of the time it takes for Team 2 to guess the sentence. Then reverse the procedure. The winning team is the one who guesses the sentences in less time.

Twenty of the top fifty most popular hobbies include:

1. reading; 2. watching TV; 3. family time; 4. fishing;
5. computer; 6. gardening; 7. walking; 8. exercise; 9. hunting;
